

Chief Economist

Michala Marcussen, CFA, is head of global economics at Societe Generale Corporate and Investment Banking. Previously, she served as a senior economist at Societe Generale Group and as head of strategy and economic research at Societe Generale Asset Management.

Ms. Marcussen began her career in capital markets at Den Danske Bank. She is a frequent commentator in the financial press and appears regularly on financial news channels. Ms. Marcussen is a contributor to the book Asset Management and Asset Liability Management and coauthor of the paper “Can Life-Cycle Plans Weather the Pension Storm?” She teaches a course in exchange rate economics at HEC and is a member of the Société d’Économie Politique. Ms. Marcussen holds a master of science in economics degree from the University of Copenhagen.